

NEWS RELEASE

21 February 2011

Contacts

Gerry Ridge	Trevor Llanwarne
Press Officer	Government Actuary
020 7211 2676	020 7211 2620
gerrard.ridge@gad.gov.uk	trevor.llanwarne@gad.gov.uk

GAD moves its Scottish office to Edinburgh

The Government Actuary's Department (GAD) has moved its Scottish office from Glasgow to Edinburgh, in order to better serve its Scottish clients and to be closer to the heart of Scottish government.

The Edinburgh office will be led by Ken Kneller, an experienced actuary who has worked for GAD for 13 years, following an earlier career in private sector actuarial consultancies. Ken said "GAD has built a firm foundation in Scotland and I am looking forward to developing it further, giving GAD's Scottish clients the best possible actuarial advice and support".

Trevor Llanwarne, the Government Actuary, added that "having a local presence in Scotland helps GAD build closer and more effective working relationships with clients. Our new Edinburgh office will allow us to add real value to discussions within Scotland on pensions, risk management, and other long-term policies such as healthcare funding and social security."

- ENDS -

Editor's notes

1 The new Edinburgh office is at:

Abbey Business Centre
83 Princes Street
Edinburgh
EH2 2ER

Telephone: 0131 247 7510
e-mail: ken.kneller@gad.gov.uk

2 The Government Actuary's Department (GAD) provides actuarial analysis for the public sector from the public sector, and has been working within government for almost a century. GAD offers actuarial services to governments and public sector organisations, in the UK and around the world, covering pensions, social security and insurance. Based in London, GAD employs 140 people, of whom 60 are qualified actuaries.